MESSAGE FROM THE VICE-CHANCELLOR

Professor (Dr.) Bimal N. Patel

Vice-Chancellor, Rashtriya Raksha University
Member, National Security Advisory Board of India
Member Elect, UN International Law Tribunal (2023-27)

India is one of the most ancient civilizations and its engagement with the world has been premised on the concept of Vasudhaiva Kutumbakam (derived from a Sanskrit phrase meaning ‘the whole world is a family’). This is evident in India’s pursuit of an enlightened national interest that has consistently kept the welfare of the larger international community in consideration. Traditionally, the field of International Relations has been dominated by perspectives from the West but there is also a rich legacy in non-Western countries like India. Ancient Indian texts like Arthashastra, Mahabharata, Bhagavad Gita and Shukra Niti provide crucial insights into India’s strategic culture.

In an increasingly globalized world, India’s engagement with the international economic, political and security order is rapidly increasing. India will be an economic power house in the future. Its rise as an influential power in the global arena will bring to the fore its ability to shape the external and internal environment. Despite facing innumerable security challenges since its independence, India’s decision makers have avoided the hasty use of force and supported peaceful resolution of disagreements. Yet when required, India has also shown strong resolve to stand firm in protecting its sovereignty and territorial integrity. This is an opportune time for upcoming Indian scholars to analyze the state of International Relations today and how India’s approach in its dealings with the immediate Neighborhood, the larger region and the international community have evolved since independence. This is also an extremely significant time for scholars analyzing India’s foreign policy to strengthen their proficiency in foreign languages. It will enable them to cultivate a better understanding of different cultures and gain critical insights into the strategic perspectives of other countries based on indigenous primary and secondary sources.

School of International Cooperation, Security and Strategic Languages (SICSSL) is the only institution in India which combines inter-related fields of International Relations, Political Economy, National Security and Indian and Foreign Language proficiency. The aim is to combine theoretical aspects with practical knowledge. Regular internships combined with field visits would help the students to learn the craft through practitioners and policy shapers. I wish you all the best in your academic endeavors at the School of International Cooperation, Security and Strategic Languages.

MESSAGE FROM THE SCHOOL DIRECTOR

Dr. L.Venkateswaran

Director, School of International Cooperation,
Security and Strategic Languages (SICSSL)
Rashtriya Raksha University

Warm Greetings on behalf of the School!

SICSSL's programmes are designed at two levels and clearly reflect its objectives. At one level, the regular programmes are longer duration and designed for individuals who want to make a career by enhancing their subject matter knowledge and language proficiency. At another level, the regular programmes are complimented by diploma and certificate courses for shorter duration designed primarily for professionals in the Security domain (military, para military and police) and in the Business domain who seek to understand key insights into political stability, security environment etc while scouting potential investment opportunities.

It is a matter of immense pride that SICSSL is currently the only security oriented school in the country, offering as part of its regular Master's Programme, subject matter knowledge along with Indian and Foreign language proficiency (in an Area of Interest) in International Relations, Foreign Affairs, Political Economy and National Security. Simultaneously, the integrated (graduate and post graduate) 5 year programmes are offered to strengthen proficiency in the languages of key geographies from an Indian National Security perspective. The teaching on language courses will be led by native speakers with support from Indian faculty. The curriculum is designed in a manner that provides deep insights into the Culture, Literature, Society and History of these key geographies.

The regular M.A programme will be supplemented by certificate courses that are focused on three key geographies from India's National Security Perspective – Neighbourhood Affairs (South Asia), Indo-Pacific (South East Asia) and West Asia. The target audience for these shorter duration courses will be again professionals in the Security and Business domains. The faculty of the school are experienced and have excellent knowledge in the relevant domains of International Relations, Foreign Policy, Political Economy, National Security and significant working knowledge in other prestigious educational institutions and the Government. They are also well supported by reputed experts with significant practical experience as Emeritus Resource Faculty. I look forward to welcoming you into the SICSSL family and working together in achieving your academic goals.
